The Historical Roots of Factory Girls

Industrial Revolution and the Rise of Factory Work

The Industrial Revolution, spanning from the late 18th to the early 19th century, marked a pivotal shift from agrarian economies to industrialized societies. During this period, factories emerged as centers of mass production, requiring a large workforce. Women, particularly young women and girls, became a vital part of this workforce due to several factors:

- Availability of cheap labor
- Perceived as more manageable and adaptable
- Employment opportunities in urban areas replacing traditional domestic roles

In cities like Manchester, Birmingham, and Lowell (USA), factory girls became emblematic of the new economic order. They worked long hours?often 12 to 16 hours a day?in often hazardous conditions, but their labor was essential for the rapid expansion of industries such as textiles, iron, and coal mining.

Demographics and Working Conditions

Factory girls were predominantly:

- Often migrants from rural areas seeking better economic prospects
- From lower socio-economic backgrounds

Their working conditions included:
